The following materials have been created by the curriculum design team at Football Beyond Borders - a youth charity who use the power of football to engage young people with education. The topics for discussion and activities are aimed at young people aged between 11-14 (Years 7-9 in secondary school). These materials will work best in a classroom setting but can be used with youth groups, for home schooling purposes or with young people in a wide range of educational contexts. Importantly, discussions and activities should be lead by a practitioner/ educator who is familiar with the content of these slides; in particular with the history of the challenges and successes of Black Britons both historically and in present day Britain.

With IAN WRIGHT

In order to bring these materials to life and ensure they are both relevant and engaging for the young people you work with, FBB suggest that you use your own visual content and research to supplement these slides. This may mean keeping up to date with and incorporating the latest and most influential/significant key Black British figures at various stages. Ideally, slides would be personalised and would visually represent both the young people you work with and their communities.
