My Quit Guide

"I can – and do – break promises to myself. It's the promises I make to others that I go out of my way to keep."

"I'm best when I have to answer to others. A simple chat with my pharmacist changed my life."

"Camaraderie is vital. If we do it together and keep it fun – I'm in."

WELCOME TO THE QUITTERS

Congratulations on starting your incredible journey to a new lifestyle, free of smoking! Getting started is often the easy part. It's keeping it up that is difficult! Only a tiny number of people succeed in quitting smoking using willpower alone. To help you get across the finishing line, we've put together this 12-week quit programme, a journey that helps bring you steadily towards achieving your goal.

Facing your current smoking habit is where your journey begins...

STEP 1 We explain how to monitor your current smoking behaviour throughout the day, you'll discover and learn more about your personal routine, smoking triggers and obstacles.

STEP 2 It's time to get serious, set a quit date and walk the walk. Over the next 12 weeks we gently guide you throughout your journey and help you to:

- visualise your success,
- keep your focus, and
- stay motivated.

We understand the challenges you face, and are here to offer you support throughout your individual journey and after!

STEP 3 Now is the time to celebrate what you've achieved and to offer help whenever needed. This journey is yours!

Welcome to the Quitters!

→ STEP 1

Monitor your smoking

Keeping a smoking diary for a few days plays an important part to prepare yourself for quitting. Count how often you smoke, when you use cigarettes, what you do while smoking, and how much you needed or enjoyed that particular cigarette.

Look for patterns. For instance, do you use it more in the morning or at night? Do you mostly smoke with meals or after meals? Do you smoke when you're with other people or when you're alone? Becoming more aware of your smoking habit gives you more control of your behaviour and makes it easier to change it.

STEP 1

My
Pre-Quit
Diary

What are your main reasons for quitting?

→ Remind yourself throughout your journey
why you are quitting.

How much did I need it				Scale 1 to 5: 'I really need it' to 'I didn't need it'

How much did I enjoy it				Scale 1 to 5: 'I really enjoyed it' to 'I didn't enjoy it'

What could I do differently to avoid it?	Brush my teeth first

Create your personal quit strategy

Now that you can identify clearly which situations trigger your smoking habit, you have the foundations you need to create your own personalised quit strategy!

Develop an 'if-then' plan

Decide in advance what you will do if temptation strikes. Look at your diary, identify high-risk situations and come up with a plan. 'When walking to the train station, I will whistle my favourite tune.'

Avoid places and things that you associate with smoking

This is about looking at what you associate with smoking and breaking the connection. For instance, if you always smoke when you drink coffee, try switching to tea. If a night in the pub means a night of smoking, go for a meal with your friends instead.

Nicorette® Product Guide

How it works

One puff of a cigarette sends a concentrated dose of nicotine to the brain, contributing to the addictive nature of smoking. Nicotine replacement therapy (NRT) however, delivers nicotine to the brain much slower than cigarettes making NRT considerably less addictive.

NRT can help you to gradually reduce your nicotine intake, whilst helping to reduce the frequency and severity of nicotine withdrawal symptoms. Also, by using NRT you avoid exposure to the harmful chemicals produced by smoking.

Date of starting your quit journey:

Let us introduce you to a great way to monitor your progress:

Your 12-week diary

Filled with additional tips and strategies and lots of space for your own thoughts and experiences, your weekly diary plays an important part in staying on track. Find a nice, quiet place at the end of the day or week and spend 10-15 minutes reflecting on your journey. Be proud of the progress you have made so far!

Tips and strategies you will find throughout the booklet:

- Week 1 Strategies for success
- Week 2 – 4 Physical dependency
- Week 5 – 8 Emotional dependency
- Week 9 – 12 Stay smoke-free

At the beginning of your journey, take the time to work out what you really want to change in life. It will help you when times get tough ...

Visualising your smoke-free future

Creating a personal vision board at the beginning of your journey can help you visualise the changes you want in your life. Put simply, they are a collage of photos, images, words and quotes that represent what you would like to experience more of in your life.

How to create your own vision board:

1. Quiet time

Find a quiet place and reflect on your goals and dreams. What do you want from life? No shoulds, oughts or musts – just your own inner desires. Be as specific as you can.

2. Get set

Gather your supplies. You'll need a large sheet of paper, magazines, newspapers, a really happy picture of yourself, scissors, and some glue.

3. Dig into it

This is the fun part. Go through the magazines and newspapers and tear out any images or words that appeal to you. Trust your intuition.

4. Choose your favourites

Keep only the ones you really like even if you don't know why you like them.

5. Put it together

Place your photo at the centre and arrange the images and inspiring words around it.

6. Remind yourself

Place your vision board where you will see it every day to remind you of what you are trying to achieve.

*Make a pledge:
I'm not stopping,
I'm starting ...'*

WEEK 1

Feel free to flick through the booklet for useful tips throughout your journey!

Strategies for Success

The first week is often ‘make or break’ time when it comes to successful quitting. One of the main reasons people start smoking again is that they find the withdrawal symptoms so uncomfortable. Sudden bursts of intense desire or urge to smoke are often triggered by a cue as simple as having a cup of coffee or feeling stressed.

To boost your chances of success, we've put together some of the best quit strategies and tactics that have worked, and are working for other people. You don't have to use them all, but we're pretty certain that you will find many of them helpful in supporting your efforts to quit.

Be accountable to others

Publicly announce that you're going to quit.

A simple, but effective strategy. People will keep asking how you are doing and reminding you of your commitment. This will help motivate you to keep going. You won't want to let people down (you also don't want the hassle of all those well-meant reminders!).

Team up with a quit buddy.

This is someone who will help you monitor your progress, hold you accountable, and support you through the tough moments. If you can, choose someone who's also trying to quit so you can support each other through the emotions, cravings and other challenges. It's easier together.

Spot your excuses

We're all experts at coming up with excuses – it's human nature. Even when we're deeply committed to something, we look for reasons not to do it – just this once. With a little imagination we can find an excuse for every occasion, i.e. ““I'll join you outside, I need a break from my desk.” – Odd, isn't it? Instead of fleeing temptation, we make seemingly harmless decisions that almost guarantee we'll give in to temptation. The trick is to spot your excuse before you fall!

Have you
spotted an excuse
of your own?

TIMELINE

Benefits of Quitting after 1 Week*

after 20 minutes

→ Pulse rate returns to normal.

after 8 hours

→ Circulation improves. Nicotine is reduced by 90% and carbon monoxide levels in blood reduce by 75%.

after 48 hours

→ Carbon monoxide will be eliminated from the body. Lungs start to clear out mucus and other smoking debris.

→ There is no nicotine in the body. Ability to taste and smell is improved.

after 72 hours

→ Breathing becomes easier. Bronchial tubes begin to relax and energy levels increase.

* Every quitting journey is unique and may vary from individual to individual.

Tackling Withdrawals & Cravings

Withdrawal symptoms are positive signs that your body is recovering from the harmful effects of smoking. They will start to fade as your body – and mind! – gets used to quitting. Here are a few common symptoms and what you can do to overcome them.

Cough

Developing a cough after quitting is a sign that your lungs are actually getting better. Drink plenty of water and use honey or suck cough drops to ease any throat irritation.

Feeling irritability

This is a normal part of the quitting process. You don't need a reason to feel irritated, you just do. Don't bottle it up – or blow up. Say what's on your mind calmly and courteously. Breathe slowly and deeply. Go for a walk. Talk with someone that supports you.

Craving cigarettes

Smoking is highly addictive so cravings are common, especially in the first few days. Cravings typically last for 5 to 10 minutes. They may be extremely uncomfortable, but try to wait them out and remind yourself that the feeling will pass. Start doing an activity, drink some water, brush your teeth. Tell yourself to wait for 30 minutes!

WEEK 3

*Increase your chances!
Being active on a regular basis supports a reduction in cravings!*

Strengthen your Willpower

Contrary to popular belief, willpower is not something we're born with. Rather, it is a complex mind-body response that can be compromised by stress, sleep deprivation and poor nutrition. Boost your willpower by following these practices:

Get a good night's sleep

Lack of sleep (less than six hours a night) causes the 'pre-frontal cortex' - the part of your brain involved in willpower decisions - to lose control over the part of your brain that creates cravings. Research shows that by catching up on sleep your ability to focus and use of self-control can be restored and therefore help to resist cigarette craving.

Eat healthy food

Eating a more plant-based, less processed diet makes more energy available to the brain, making it easier to stay in control. When we don't eat well, we tend to feel sluggish and this makes it harder to resist a cigarette.

Exercise regularly

Whether you choose walking, dancing, gym work or yoga, regular physical exercise will make you more resilient to stress. You'll feel better too.

Drink more water

While quitting, drinking water is:

- A good distraction! It will keep your hands and mouth busy.
- A great way to keep hydrated.
- A helpful way to reduce the feelings of hunger.

WEEK 4

After just 2 weeks
your circulation
will have improved*

Set yourself up for Success

The clearer you are about what you expect from yourself, the more likely you are to succeed in quitting. Think of ‘if...then’ scenarios to clarify how you will act in certain situations. For example, ‘If feeling tense, I will practice deep breathing.’

And if you’re at a loss at what to do with your hands use a stress ball or start knitting. Now that you’re on your quitter journey it’s worthwhile to switch things up for a while to avoid personal high-risk situations!

We also tend to believe what we say about ourselves. Practice saying “I don’t smoke”. In time, you will believe it. Using “I don’t” rather than “I can’t” says you’re in control of your actions and you’re acting by choice. This makes it easier to follow through!

Get rid of the reminders.
Throw away ashtrays,
cigarette lighters and anything else that might tempt you to smoke.

* Every quitting journey is unique and may vary from individual to individual.

WEEK 5

Have you picked your quit-buddy to support you on your journey?

Stumbling

Oh dear, you've had a slip and it feels as if all your hard work has been wasted. Be assured – you're not alone! Most people stumble a few times before they quit for good. It's part of the process. Of course it would be better not to slip, but we're all human. It's not the end of the world.

You have a choice now. You can use the slip as an excuse to keep smoking. Or you can try to figure out why you slipped and learn from the experience. What was the trigger that made you light up? Once you've identified it, make a plan to deal with it the next time.

Focus on the intention.

Why did you quit in the first place? Was it to give yourself the gift of good health, to look and feel better? You got derailed because you forgot your intention, or other priorities became more important. Keep your reasons for quitting in mind as you start again.

Be kind to yourself.

You'd comfort a friend in pain – treat yourself with the same compassion! Kindness is a far better motivator than guilt.

Take the smallest step.

Instead of telling yourself you'll never smoke again, say you won't smoke for the next half hour – and mean it. Then focus on the next tiny step. You can do it.

Remind yourself:

You haven't stopped quitting – you just slipped. Start afresh.

It will make it easier letting them go!*

WEEK 6

*Do things you enjoy,
refresh your energy levels,
find time to play!*

Learn to manage Stress

Some people think that smoking helps deal with stress when in fact, smoking causes stress. It creates a spike in your heart rate and blood pressure, which appears to relax you but all you are getting is a brief hit from a brain-reward chemical called dopamine, then the up-and-down pattern starts again.

Luckily, there are plenty of things you can do to help you deal with stress in a positive way:

Try and develop a 'can-do' attitude. If you believe you can do it, you stand a much better chance of staying off cigarettes than if you tell yourself you can't.

Focus on the here and now. Sometimes we feel overwhelmed by all the things that need our attention. Take a deep breath, put aside the things that can wait and concentrate on what is in front of you.

Do things you enjoy doing – listening to music, watching a film, playing with the dog. Not only will these activities distract you, they'll refresh your energy levels and strengthen your willpower.

Get active and have fun. Research shows that physical activity helps boost the brain chemicals associated with feelings of well-being. Pick an activity you really enjoy – one that doesn't feel like another item on your To Do list and try do it regularly.

Then focus on the next step. You can beat this!*

WEEK 7

*Don't stop your journey
- you're almost there!*

Get a good night's sleep

In the first few weeks after quitting, your sleep pattern may change. Cigarettes are a stimulant and withdrawal can leave you feeling drained, exhausted and sleeping more than usual. If this happens, allow yourself plenty of rest to help your body get through the withdrawal phase. On the other hand, you may find it harder to fall asleep or you may wake frequently during the night, causing you to be tired and irritable during the day. All these changes are normal. Go easy on yourself and give your body time to adjust to smoke free living.

If you have trouble sleeping, go for walks during the day, listen to relaxing music in the evening or drink a glass of warm milk or herbal tea before bed.

Remember:

Research shows that by catching up on sleep your ability to focus and use of self-control can be restored and therefore help to resist a cigarette craving.

WEEK 8

What does your friends and family try to achieve?

Share your Goals

An incredible journey doesn't have to be exclusively about quitting. Other areas like 'eat healthier food', 'declutter your home' or 'exercise regularly' can also contribute to well-being and happiness.

Share your goals among family and friends, stick together and encourage each other. Throw in a little bit of humour to help buffer stress and see the benefits in each others lives.

Surround yourself with people who support you.

What other people do, say and think affects us. Sometimes, we even pick up their habits. So, when trying to quit, it's helpful to be around people who support your decision to quit.

WEEK 9

Do you already start to feel better? What benefits have you noticed?

Appearance, Wellbeing & Health

Getting started is often the easy part. It's keeping it up that is difficult, no matter who you are, it's worth reminding yourself of some of the benefits of quitting.

You will look better – with clearer skin and fewer lines. Any yellowing of your teeth will begin to fade.

You will smell better – with fresher breath, hair and clothes. Your family, friends and co-workers will be delighted!

You will feel better – with more energy than you've had in a long time, because your circulation will improve which makes all physical activity easier.

You will rediscover tastes and smells – you'll be amazed at what you've been missing.

You will have more control over your life – smoking won't dictate what you do each day.

You will start to reduce your risk of heart disease and most forms of cancer – it's not just your lungs that are affected by smoking.

If you are planning a family, it's worth knowing that quitting cigarettes will increase your chances of getting pregnant and having a healthy baby.

after 4 - 12 weeks

- Your blood circulation will have returned to normal compared to a non-smoker.
- Coughing and wheezing may start to reduce.

* Every quitting journey is unique and may vary from individual to individual.

Financial Reward

Being addicted to cigarettes is expensive so the savings can be significant. For instance, if you smoked a pack of cigarettes a day when you joined the quitters just 10 weeks ago, you will have saved £ 728 by the end of this week.  Think what the savings would be in a year.

Why not put the money you save into your bank account, or a jam jar and let it grow? Use it for small treats while you are quitting or let it build to buy something special.

Put the money where you can see it and watch it grow!

Practice, and it will become easier! Just take your time and trust your breath.

Surf the Urge

If you catch yourself reaching for a cigarette, try 'surfing the urge'. An urge is another word for a craving. Urges are like waves – they rise in intensity, peak, then crash. Your job is to ride out the wave. You may even start to feel a sense of pride and accomplishment as you successfully deal with those cravings.

How to surf an urge:

Stop for a moment and think about the urge. Where in your body do you feel it? People trying to quit smoking often experience the urge in their hands or mouth.

Notice what the sensation feels like. It may be pressure, tingling, warmth, coolness, or something else. Be as specific as you can.

Now pay attention to your breath for the next couple of minutes. Don't try to change your breathing. You may find it helpful to say 'breathe in' as you inhale and 'breathe out' as you exhale.

Gently shift your attention back to your body. Notice if and how the sensations change.

Imagine the sensations as a wave. Watch the wave rise and fall as the intensity of the urge peaks and subsides. No matter how big the wave gets, you are a skilful surfer and you will use your breath to ride each wave.

→ That's it. You've surfed your first urge!

Incredible!

You may still get a craving for cigarettes (or you may not, we're all different). If you do, don't obsess about it. Distract yourself actively in a fun, absorbing and positive way.

Sing your favourite song, call a friend, go for a run, or play a game on your phone. Use the strategies you've learned along the way. Or simply tell yourself to wait 30 minutes and you'll think about it then. The craving will pass and one day they might be gone for good.

Looking forward

Sit for a few minutes and enjoy this moment. Think about your journey and dwell on the fact you've done something incredible! Write yourself a little note and tell yourself how proud you are.
